This special volume – entitled Right Livelihood and the Common God: Three Classics from the Tradition – comprises previously published English translations of three classical Islamic texts on the topic, namely:

- (1) Imam al-Shaybani's Kitab al-Kasb (Book of Earning a Livelihood)
- (2) Imam al-Ghazali's kitab Adab al-Kasb wa-Ma'ash (Book of the Proprieties of Earning and Living)
- (3) Imam al-Lubudi's Kitab al-Fadl al-Iktisab (The Virtue of Working for a Living)

In the west, there has been for some time now a lively debate on the nation of Right Livelihood in relation to the Common Good, more so since the 2008 financial and economic turmoil. We believe this special volume will provide an authentic and authoritative Islamic input toward enriching that debate for both Muslims and non-Muslims alike, and lead thereby to a global, civilizational Common Word for the Common Good in the domain of local, regional and international economic exchange.
